

Breast Cancer Services Directory

There are a range of businesses and support services available across New Zealand.

The Breast Cancer Services Directory has been designed to help you view the full range of services. The directory works best when you take the time to browse the services and products available to you. There are more than 500 listings, so the following tips will help you to have the best search experience.

The right search for you

To find the services you're looking for, you should start by selecting the icon which represents your main search area.

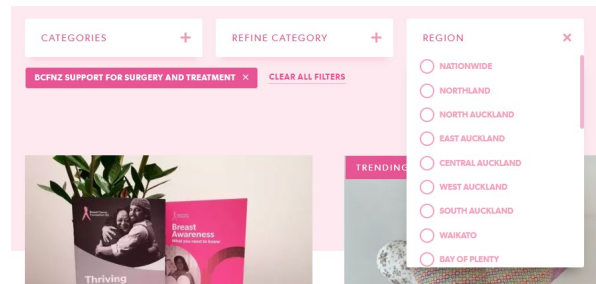

- Free BCFNZ support
- Early detection
- Diagnosis & treatment
- Support during treatment
- Connecting with others
- Health & wellbeing
- Supporting someone else

Once the icon is selected, click on the Categories box and review the drop down list to refine your search.

Select your region

Businesses that provide a nationwide service and your local businesses will show when you select a region.

Refine your search

Some search categories have a large number of listings. To make the search manageable, you can further refine your search by viewing the Refine Category drop down list.

Searching again

You'll want to search more than one area of the directory. When you've finished with your first search, clear all filters to reset your search.

Keeping track of my search

If you're viewing the directory on a desktop computer, you can keep track of your search by looking at the pink tags under the Category boxes. You'll also notice there's a pink dot below the search icon you've selected. Each time you clear all filters, your search starts again.

I know the name of the service I'm looking for

If you know the name of the service you're looking for, you can do a quick search by clicking on the magnifying glass above the icons. It's important to know the name of the business to use this search function. If you're not sure, browse the search categories.
